

Help us shape the future of Compliance in Care

We're actively looking for forward-thinking pharmacies and care professionals to help us put medication adherence at the top of the healthcare agenda as part of some new research. We're conducting a study to gather vital evidence to underline what the care sector is telling us; that monitored dosage systems make an important role in the reduced risk of medication errors among patients with complex drug regimens or those with dementia or mental health issues.

Register your interest - Adherence research study

If you're interested in playing your part in the first study of its kind, pledge your interest by completing the slip below.

I agree to be contacted about participation in the Compliance in Care study

I am interested in participating in the Compliance in Care research

I have conducted research into compliance and would like to share this information/best practice with the care sector

Name: _____

Name of organisation: _____

Postcode: _____

Phone number: _____

Mobile: _____

Email: _____

Please DO NOT contact me by post by phone by email with news and information about Biodose services

